

PorkMoney reveals the massive potential in Pig Farming      Pork is the most widely eaten meat in the world. It accounts for over 40% of the world's meat consumption. Pig farming involves the raising and breeding of pigs majorly for food. Pork is high in protein and essential vitamins, minerals, amino acid and is good for overall health. Some pork parts like that of tenderloin, loin chops and sirloin roast made from the lean cuts are more healthy than chicken. Considering the health benefits of pork and the statistical revelation that points towards the viability of pig farming, the PorkMoney initiative came into being. The brain behind it, Muiyiwa Folorunso who has a wealth of experience in marketing and business development pulled together a team of seasoned professionals to make PorkMoney a working reality. Due to kick off officially on the 4th of June 2018, the initiative is drawing a large chunk of stakeholders who share in the ideals of pig farming. Even Ghanaian actor and business man, John Dumelo recently partnered with PorkMoney after discovering the huge potential in pig farming. Pork Money offers the opportunity to delve into pig farming that yield profits up to 35% in 11 months depending on the plan subscribed to. Good deal! PorkMoney is a pig farm that have been designed with the most amazing framework for stakeholders to enjoy a stress free business that have a guaranteed Money Back proposition that would see profits maximized. Last year alone, South Africa exported 13,500 metric tonnes of pork, or 5.5% of its total production, mostly to neighboring countries such as Namibia, Mozambique, Lesotho and Swaziland. These impressive stats have nudged Pork Money to begin the Pork revolution in Western Africa, since Ghana and Nigeria are the largest consumers of Pork. The company have their offices and Farms in Nigeria and Ghana.

Link to Post: <https://www.lindaikejisblog.com/2018/5/porkmoney-reveals-the-massive-potential-in-pig-farming.html>